ALLIES DIG IN FOR FIGHT TO BLOCK HOOVER

Surprised and Disappointed When Mellon Favors Secretary's Candidacy

OUTLOOK NOT ROSY

Cabinet Candidate To Get 44 Delegates During This Week

BY GEORGE R. HOLMES
Star Staff Correspondent

Washington, May 14—Hard hit by the apparent drift of Pennsylvania to the Hoover candidacy, the anti-Hoover allies were digging in today for a protracted and stubborn last-ditch fight to "stop" the secretary of commerce at Kansas City four weeks hence.

Their task has been made doubly difficult—perhaps impossible—by the apparent willingness of the Mellon machine in Pennsylvania to take Hoover if President Coolidge cannot be persuaded to stand again. Upon that nearly all the practical politicians of Washington were agreed today.

Hoover's pledged and committed delegate strength is due to cross the 400-mark this week, not counting any votes from New York or Pennsylvania, whose combined strength is 169 in the convention. From this it is apparent that if New York should follow Pennsylvania into the Hoover camp the fight against Hoover at Kansas City becomes more or less an idle gesture.

Will Be Over 400

As of today, Hoover has approximately 367 committed delegates. New Jersey will add 31 in tomorrow's primary, and on next Friday Oregon will fall into line with 13, pushing the Hoover total across the 400 line. In both these states Hoover has no opposition, and the state leaders are for him. Their 44 votes go to him by default. Even half of New York's 90, coupled with Pennsylvania's 79 would put the cabinet candidate within a few votes of the necessary 545.

The senatorial leaders of "the allies" privately admit that the outlook for stopping Hoover is not a rosy one. Publicly, however, they are maintaining a bold front, and are determined to go

MURDER THEORY IS ADVANCED IN DEATH

Body of Auto Racer Found Near Brush Fire at Ranch

Los Angeles, May 14—Murder, motivated by robbery, and committed by a person who sought to efface the deed with flame, was the theory on the basis of which sheriff's investigators today pressed further their inquiry into the mysterious death of Dave Lewis, nationally prominent auto racing driver.

A bullet wound in his head, Lewis' body was discovered in his ranch home on San Francisquito Canyon near here. On the adjacent ground a brush fire of unknown origin was raging. Beside the body lay a .45 calibre army automatic revolver.

The possibility of suicide was minimized by investigators when it was learned that Lewis did not own a revolver. Relatives of the dead man declared they were aware of no possible motive for suicide. Lewis was looking forward, they said, to participation in the forthcoming speedway races at Indianapolis and planned to depart for the Indiana city on May 23.

The theory that a robber entered Lewis' ranch home, four miles above the demolished St. Francis Dam, and killed the racing driver upon meeting resistance gained credence with the revelation that the home contains many articles of value. It is thought that the probable assailant fled from the house after killing Lewis, and started the brush fire to cover the murder.

MAN FOUND DEAD

Massillon, May 14—Coroner T. C. McQuate today was investigating the death of Emin Aldin, 25, an Albanian, whose body was found near a railroad trestle here with three bullet wounds in the head. McQuate was said to be working on a theory that the man had been killed as a result of a gamblers' argument.

MISSING RECORDER

CHARLES E. SMITH

INSPECTION OF COUNTY OFFICE NEARING END

Examiners Expected To Complete Work on Recorder's Books Tuesday

Inspection of the records of Charles E. Smith, county recorder, will probably not be completed before Tuesday, according to T. W. Jones, who with A. G. Atwill, is making an examination for the state bureau of inspection of public offices.

The examiners have been working on Smith's records for the past week. They have been instructed to make a special report on their findings to the office of the state auditor when they complete the inspection.

Smith mysteriously disappeared two weeks ago yesterday. So far no clues have been unearthed as to his whereabouts. While there has been no search instituted by Smith's bondsmen or by the state department, the parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Smith, Corticsay, have been attempting to locate their son. The search so far has been without result.

The parents this morning refused to comment on circulated reports that the recorder had left his home early Sunday morning, April 29, after he had been reprimanded for staying out late Saturday night. His automobile was left in the garage. It is supposed that the missing man left the city by train.

TO BE REMEMBERED

Service Men's Names May Be Placed In Volume

Washington, May 14—The "unwept, unhonored and unsung" thousands of soldiers, sailors and marines who died during the World War without their names ever being assembled, are at last to be remembered.

Rep. Edith Nourse Rogers, Republican of Massachusetts, today at the request of the Disabled American Veterans, introduced a bill providing that all of these names be assembled in one public volume and published with the place of death, military rank and organization, together with the name of the nearest relative. A copy of the book will be furnished free to each of the nearest relatives.

WORK STARTED HERE ON FIRST AIR MARKER

Letters To Be 25-Feet High and Visible One Mile

Work of installing the first marker as a guide to aviators was started Saturday by members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce. The marker is being placed in a large open field belonging to the Marion Water Co., and is located near the Erie railroad west of the city.

When the marker is completed, fliers passing in this vicinity will see the name of the city in huge white letters 25 feet in height. The name will be more than 300 feet in length.

The marker is being constructed of stone. It will be whitewashed and will be visible for practically a mile.

Three other markers are soon to be placed on roofs of buildings in the city. One metal marker to be placed on a roof has been purchased by the Kiwanis Club and will be installed by the Junior Chamber.

Installation of the markers is the first visible step taken by the Junior Chamber in its program of providing an airport for the city. When a field is finally located and the airport established, large white arrows pointing in the direction of the field will be placed near the markers.

Reno's Divorce Mill Doubles Output In 1927

WASHINGTON, May 14—America's great divorce mill at Reno, Nev., more than doubled its output in 1927.

The courts of Washoe County terminated the wedding "bliss" of 3,003 couples. Census figures announced today showed that in 1926 only 733 divorces were granted at Reno.

According to population ratios one out of every 40 residents of Nevada obtained official separation during the year, while in 1926 the proportion was one out of 77. The ratio for Reno was vastly higher.

CONFERENCE AVOIDS ASIATIC WAR ACTION

Methodists Refer Resolution to Committee After Talk by Editor

Kansas City, Mo., May 14—The Methodist Episcopal general conference today avoided direct action on the Chinese-Japanese crisis by referring to a committee a resolution that the conference urge President Coolidge to use his offices to avert any conflict between China and Japan.

A warning that a conflict between these two Asiatic countries might lead to another World War was issued by Dr. R. Y. Lo of Shanghai, editor of the Chinese Christian Advocate, who introduced the peace resolution.

WHAT NEXT?

Contrivance Puts End To "Back Seat Drivers"

New York, May 14—The wonders of this modern age never cease. Drivers are to have absolute privacy in an automobile and "back seat drivers" are to be silenced all by a mere mechanical device.

Peter Jones, an English steel magnate, who arrived today aboard the Samaria, brought the contrivance with him—reversible back seat and a door through the rear of the automobile.

"By means of this seat," explained Jones, "the rear seat passengers in the automobile can look out the back just like on a Pullman observation car. Lovers will not be annoyed with by the presence of the chauffeur, the driver will not be annoyed with by the 'back seat drivers'."

LOWDEN SPENDS $60,000 IN HIS OWN CAMPAIGN

Former Illinois Governor Tells Senate Committee About Race

GETS WARM GREETING

Reveals How He Entered List for C. O. P. Presidential Nomination

Washington, May 14—Former Gov. Frank O. Lowden of Illinois has spent $60,000 in his campaign for the Republican presidential nomination, he told the Senate Presidential Funds Inquiry today.

Total receipts in his campaign have been $64,780, of which he personally has contributed $12,500 or $15,000.

This sum was in sharp contrast to his 1920 campaign, when his managers reported expenditures of $414,987.

Senator Steiwer, Republican of Oregon, chairman, first introduced Lowden to members of the committee and there was a round of handshaking. This unusual greeting was extended to no other candidate.

"We want to thank you, Governor, for your courtesy in accepting our invitation to appear here," Steiwer added.

Lowden explained how he entered the Republican presidential race.

Friends Come to Him

"A year ago this spring, some of my friends came to me and more wrote me about the presidency," said Lowden. "I told them I was doing nothing about it. A little later, three of my friends came to me. They were Clarence E. Buck, Homer M. Custer and Robert D. Clark, now a resident of Los Angeles. They asked me whether I had any objection to their getting together and getting up a little organization to watch developments as they might affect me. I had no objection. So really they are acting with my consent and they are the only ones to whom I have given that consent. I have made no political speeches although a good deal of pressure was put upon me."

He said Buck had charge of all receipts and expenditures.

Avoids Larger Campaign

"I asked Buck before I left for the total amounts. He said that the receipts totaled $64,780 and the expenditures were not quite $60,000. Buck says I contributed $15,000 of that sum, but my books at home show I con

"Be Nice, Boys," Warning Issued to Ward Club Members in Holdup

Chicago, May 14—The height of something or other was achieved here early today when a dozen members of the Fourth Ward Democratic Club had their discussion of "Chicago's crime wave" interrupted by three bandits who held up the club.

"Now when Judge Lindsay is elected state's attorney," began one of the politicians, he was—

Just then the door opened and in walked three gun-toting bandits.

"Be nice, boys, and nobody will get hurt," commanded the leader.

Benjamin Kunze, attorney for the sanitary district, was the heaviest loser, being robbed of a watch valued at $1,000. Others were robbed of amounts varying from five to fifty dollars.

As a parting shot the bandit leader said:

"You boys should learn to separate politics from crime."

FIVE PERSONS HELD BACK BY DEATH THREAT

Lone Negro Invades Silver-st Grocery, Loots Cash Register

ESCAPES WITH $123

Customers and Clerks Face Menace of Bandit's Revolvers

With a terse warning that should any of the five persons in the place move they would do so at the risk of their lives, a lone negro bandit armed with two 45-caliber revolvers held up the Kroger grocery on Silver-st, Saturday night, and escaped with $123.30 which he scooped from the drawer of the cash register into his raincoat pocket.

Shortly before 9 o'clock Saturday night, while two customers, two clerks and the manager were in the store, the negro entered and walking to the rear of the room where Russell Peel, manager, was standing with his back to the door, drew the two revolvers from his pocket and pointing them at Peel, said: "If you want to eat your Sunday dinner tomorrow, you hadn't better move."

His face turned from the negro, Peel at first surmised that some one was joking, according to his account of the incident. He ascertained that it was no joke, however, when he turned and gazed directly into the muzzles of two guns.

Goes to Cash Register

Covering Peel with one gun, the negro slipped the other into his pocket, walked to the rear of the counter, opened the cash register and began scooping its contents into his pocket.

One of the customers, Mrs. Moses Parker of Avondale-av, who had been making purchases from Peel's wife, started to leave the store but halted when the robber warned her that if she took another step it "would be her last."

Lowell Halderman, a clerk, narrowly escaped being shot by the bandit when a package of breakfast food accidentally fell from a shelf where he was working and fell near the negro's feet.

Halderman was standing on a high stool arranging stock on top of the refrigerator when the bandit entered. In his excitement the clerk knocked the

POLICE HOLD MAN IN PROBE OF FIRE

Seek Cause of Blaze Which Causes $1,200 Loss at Rooming House

Suffering from badly singed eyebrows and hair, Carl Whitfield, negro, was taken to police headquarters at 12:35 o'clock this morning to explain what connection he had with the starting of a fire which practically gutted three sleeping rooms at a rooming house conducted by Mrs. Vestila Gardner, colored, at 451 W. Centeral, early this morning.

Mrs. Gardner, with another roomer, was seated in a front room at her home at 12:30 this morning when they heard a sound as of some one falling down stairs. They rushed into the hall to find the building filled with smoke and Whitfield at the bottom of the stairs with his hair and eyebrows singed and his clothing burned.

Firemen from central and No. 2 stations responded to a call sent in by Mrs. Gardner and the blaze was extinguished. Damage is estimated at $1,200, with no insurance. The building is owned by C. S. Mowry.

Eagles Drop 10-Inning Contest To House of David Team

Marion Club Hits Snag In Eighth Frame

Farrell Fans 14 Marion Players; Has Poor Support

BY KARL B. McELROY
Sports Editor, The Star

After holding the House of David baseball aggregation scoreless for seven innings, Eddy stud weakened on the mound and as a result the Marion Eagles were defeat l yesterday afternoon at Lincoln Park in a 10-inning contest, 4 to 3.

The Eagles displayed an exceptionally fine brand of ball but a bit of wildness in the last three innings lost the game after everything seemed to end up. Three bases on balls issued by Stull resulted in that number of runs being pushed across the pan by the long-whiskered ace.

The submarine ball of Farrell, hurler for the House of David, had local batters guessing all the time. He struck out 14 Marion batsmen and had complete control of the ball.

No Earned Runs

Not a single earned run was scored by Marion in the entire contest. Costly errors in the House of David team gave the locals three runs. Eight errors were chalked up against the visitors while the Eagles made but two.

Marion scored the first run in the second inning after Bacon had walked. An error on Evans in his peg to second gave the local manager his chance to cross the plate. Five out of six men up in the first two innings were fanned by Farrell.

Pine scored the second run in the fourth frame after getting to first on an error. Two pass balls landed him on third and another error allowed him to score. Marion's final run came in the eighth inning after Buckland landed on second when Grant fumbled the ball. He stole second and scored on Price's single to center.

When Stull walked Rogers, the House of David nine gathered heart and started a batting rally. Wheesell singled sending Rogers on to third. A single and a sacrifice hit scored both men.

Tied in Ninth Inning

In the ninth inning the score was tied at three all when Grant walked and scored on Resich's long drive to right field. Resich was put out when he attempted to stretch the hit into a double.

Again in the tenth inning a walk resulted in a score. Menzie was issued a free ticket to first and he scored on Clyde's single into right field. This gave the House of David a one point lead as the contest entered the last half of the tenth inning.

Buckland led off for the locals in the final frame falling victim to Farrell's underhand ball. Pine singled and Price made first on an error. Bacon then walked filling the bases. With but one man down, Shamrock proceeded to fan. Conroy was sent in as a pinch hitter weakly hitting to left for an easy putout.

In spite of the fact that he was given but little support, Farrell was master of the situation all the way. He held the locals to five safe bingles while his team mates nicked Stull for seven.

An exceptionally nice exhibition of ball was given by Buckland at third. He handled 10 chances without an error. A. Stull at first chalked up 19 put outs without a blow.

WESLEYAN ATHLETES FACING TOUGH GRIND

Five Sport Events Booked at Delaware School This Week

Delaware, May 14—Ohio Wesleyan athletes will have at least one intercollegiate contest scheduled for every day except Monday during the coming week. Two baseball games, the Buckeye Athletic association track meet and tennis tournament, a dual tennis meet with Ohio and a golf match with St. John's of Toledo are all scheduled for the coming week.

The University of Cincinnati baseball team will open the week's program for the Battling Bishops when it comes here Tuesday afternoon. Cincinnati defeated the Bishops a week ago 9 to 8 and the Ohio Wesleyan team is out to reverse the one point decision.

The second intercollegiate athletic event of the week for Ohio Wesleyan will be the tennis matches with Ohio at Athens, Wednesday afternoon. Golf matches between Ohio Wesleyan and St. John's of Toledo will be the Thursday afternoon attraction.

Friday afternoon presents a double bill. Ohio Wesleyan tennis players will be in action at the Buckeye Athletic association tournament at Oxford and the Bishop baseball team will be host to Ohio University here. Twelve innings were required to decide the last game between Ohio Wesleyan and Ohio university the Bishops finally winning by a 13 to 12 score.

The Buckeye Athletic association track meet at Oxford Saturday will be the biggest single event of the week for the Battling Bishops who are expecting to repeat their feat of last year and to take the Buckeye track and field championship again. The Battling Bishops are hoping to break records in dashes, hurdles and discus.

CHAMPION STICKING TO LIGHT WORKOUTS

Gene Will Not Take on Sparring Partners Until Next Month

Speculator, N. Y., May 14—Gene Tunney has started light training at his isolated mountain camp here in preparation for his September title bout with Jack Dempsey, but the champion will not take on any sparring partners until a few days before the first of the month. The heavyweight champion is sticking to road work at present. He showed signs of exhaustion after covering three miles in his initial run yesterday.

Tunney has about 10 weeks in which to reduce from 200 to 180 pounds, his fighting weight. His workouts next week will consist mainly of shadow boxing, rope skipping and bag punching. After that Billy Ardalick, Bayonne, N. J., boxer, and the other sparring partners will give the champion a real workout daily.

LAZTO MUST WIN BATTLE TO BE ELIGIBLE FOR BOUT

New York, May 14—Pete Latzo of Scranton, Pa., former welterweight champion, must defeat Ring Conley of Lewiston, Me., in their 10-round bout here tonight in order to remain eligible for his light-heavyweight title fight with Tommy Loughran on May 30. Conley nearly beat Paul Berlenbach here last July.

REDS ARE LEADING GIANTS

Yanks Stock Up 14 Points During Week

National League Race Serious Affair for Clubs Concerned

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

New York, May 14—Comedy may be the motif of the American League situation, with the Yankees increasing their advantage of 135 percentage points at the end of last week to 142 at the start of this one, but, to the clubs immediately involved, the National League race is about as comical as a hair lip. The Giants were comfortably behind the Reds, who moved into first place yesterday by winning from the hopeless Phils while the Giants were losing off their second straight to the Cubs.

The entire National League became tighter than a sailor's hand clasp during the week as the result of a general balancing of values. The Cubs, for example stopped losing to everyone and proceeded to win from all comers, beating the Giants and Dodgers out of six straight gaining no less than 108 points in the percentage table and advancing from fifth to third place in the standing of the clubs. The Cards, meantime, also reeled off six in a row but were stopped yesterday by the Braves.

Cincy Gains 30 Points

Cincinnati gained 30 points on the week. The Cubs, Cards and Reds were the only entries to do themselves any good for the seven days in question. Brooklyn losing 98 points in the table and dropping from third to sixth place.

By comparison, the American League has no more action than a tableau. The Athletics and Indians did manage to keep moving in the general direction of some place by winning four out of six and gaining 7 points each on the week. But the Yanks gained 14.

The White Sox, Cleveland and Detroit have come to the Yankee stadium and have left the record of one game won in nine played. The Yanks' pitching may be a bit uncertain and the Indian pitchers did cramp their style to some extent but they always had the punch with men on.

Indians Best in West

So far, the Indians have looked the part of the best western club, playing the Yanks right down to the last post, and then knocking off the Athletics for two straight after Mr. Mack's young and old men had won six in a row. And as a fitting tribute to Cleveland's pitching, it might be mentioned that the club averaged just a little more than three runs a game during the week.

The Athletics were on a roaring rampage until they faced Uhle and company but the last two days have seen them score just once in 18 innings.

The tip off on the American League situation is that only one change in the standing was effected during the week and that one saw the Red Sox emerge from last place at the expense of the White Sox. Detroit and Washington did exchange fifth and sixth places for a day but the end of the week found the Senators heading the second division as before. They have slight cause to congratulate themselves, in view of the fact that the Browns lost 50 percentage points and four out of five ball games and still remained fourth.

The Cubs, like the Indians, got by the week on their pitching, Root and Neif having suddenly snapped into it. However, just how long that staff will be able to carry a club in a tight race with a four run per game average remains to be witnessed. The Cards mixed fair pitching with plenty of runs to make their advance; so did the Reds, although the latter needed those 11 runs of yesterday to bring their run average up to adequate proportions.

PIRATES SEEK JESS PETTY IN TRADE WITH BROOKLYN

New York, May 14—A Brooklyn-Pittsburgh trade involving Jess Petty, suspended Brooklyn southpaw, was reported to be hanging fire when the two clubs left here for Pittsburgh late yesterday. The Pirates are said to want Petty and a catcher in exchange for Carmen Hill, pitcher, Johnny Gooch, catcher, and Joe Harris, substitute first baseman.

Uhle and Pennock May Win 50 Contests This Season

New York, May 14—George Uhle, pitching ace of the Cleveland Indians, and Herb Pennock, veteran southpaw of the New York Yankees, may win 50 games between them this year. With little more than a month of the season gone, each has turned in six triumphs.

Uhle is getting better every time he starts. Yesterday he held the Athletics to one hit, a double by Cochrane in the second inning, and blanked the Mackmen 2 to 0. Ollie Bonne's record only five hits but was in what is technically known as a tough spot.

A's Near Top

The Athletics, who are now practically tied with Cleveland for second place, are four games behind the Yankees. Pennock stopped Detroit yesterday by a 7 to 2 count. Yanks swung up the game in the first round with a four-run rally. Koenig got four hits and Babe Ruth three.

The Cubs' eighth straight victory, a 6 to 5 triumph over New York, sent the Giants into second place. Sheriff Blake, who hasn't lost a game this season and is leading the league pitchers, blanked the Giants after they had slammed Guy Bush around for five runs in the third frame. Jurges' first two errors tipped the score and his third spilled them completely.

The Reds eased into first place on the chin-strap, swamping the toothless Phillies 11 to 4. Callaghan, Cincy rookie, got four hits.

Although touched for five runs in the fifth inning, Joe Genewich of the Boston Braves beat St. Louis, 6 to 5, and snapped the winners' streak of the Cardinals. A homer and a triple by Bickbourg drove in four Boston runs.

With a revamped "no-up, no-down" lineup Roberts ended their losing streak at five games by trouncing the Pirates, 8 to 5. Gink Hendrick converted the Bucco error into the Pirates' Saturday's game in Pittsburgh lost for third base job to Brenner, who had not been quite at home playing second. Outfielder Stutz and second baseman Fairbrother, last year's regulars who have been warming the bench two seasons were given another chance to make good.

The Washington Senators made 16 hits in taking a 10 to 3 slugfest from the White Sox.

The Browns and Red Sox had a rain play.

FAVOR MANDELL TO WIN OVER M'LARNIN

"Baby Face" Backers Seeking Knockout Odds for Thursday's Battle

New York, May 14—Boxers who have witnessed the training camp workouts of Jimmy McLarnin and Sammy Mandell, who meet in a 10-round bout for the lightweight title here Thursday night, believe that Mandell will outpoint "Baby Face" by a wide margin or will be crowned out. Few believe that McLarnin can outpoint the champion over the long route.

Mandell is a 7 to 5 favorite over but the McLarnin backers are asking for the knockout odds. A price of 1 to 3 and 1 to 4 looks better to them than 5 to 7. They expect the Californian to finish the champion within a few rounds.

TODAY'S REVIEW OF GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, May 14—The wheat market has had a crushing downward reaction from the high prices at which it sold two weeks ago. When it was going up, nothing could stop it. When it started down, it showed the same irresistibility, according to the Herald and Examiner.

Many traders who two weeks ago were hoarse from talking about the likelihood of $2 wheat before Fall are now almost as whispers from insisting the price is going to slink below $1.40.

This sudden and drastic change in the attitude of individuals marks the extent of the change in sentiment. The market itself does not yet seem to have adjusted itself to the wrenching differentiations of a speculative nature that have been so frequent.

For some time to come, therefore, it will be well to hold one's self aloof from the psychological contagion of the pit and trade only with the greatest caution.

Wheat Worth Something

Wheat is not going straight down to nothing, any more than it was going straight up to $2 when it looked so strong.

It appears to be nearing a level about which it may scrawl within a considerable range for a considerable period. There may be innumerable symptoms of weakness that ultimately prove to be false prognostications, and as many treacherous bulges that fade away hopelessly.

The revision of the government figures on the Winter wheat crop, which raised the May 9 estimate from 450,000,000 bu. to 466,478,000, showed more faith than the addition of some 7,000,000 bu. warranted. Report That Erie Will Be Eliminated Leaves Marion With One Road in Merger

Hocking Valley Included in Van Sweringen Unification Program Scheduled for Federal Approval; Erie To Figure in Another Consolidation, Is Forecast

Announcement that the Interstate Commerce Commission is about to give a decision eliminating the Erie Railroad from the Van Sweringen plan to form a big eastern trunk line system with the Chesapeake & Ohio as a nucleus leaves only one line passing through Marion as a part of the general merger plan at least temporarily.

Under the decision, forecast in a report from Washington yesterday, the Van Sweringens would be authorized to combine stock control of the Pere Marquette and Hocking Valley Railroads with the Chesapeake & Ohio as the nucleus of one of the four great trunk line systems to be created in eastern territory.

The Hocking Valley, under the proposed plan, would handle a greatly increased amount of coal transportation from the southern fields. Marion, according to predictions made some time ago, will be the transfer point for coal shipments to the west when the consolidation becomes effective.

In Another System

Although the Erie is expected to be eliminated from the Chesapeake & Ohio merger, it will figure in another consolidation later on, according to reports. The Federal commission, it is stated, will have no objections to the Erie being included in the fourth trunkline system of the Van Sweringens, which is planned to take in the Pennsylvania, New York Central and Baltimore & Ohio.

The Erie railroad was the chief bone of contention on which minority stockholders of the Chesapeake & Ohio opposed the proposed unifications before the Interstate Commerce Commission. They protested against the Chesapeake & Ohio taking over the Erie both from a financial and a transportation standpoint.

They charged the Van Sweringens, on the financial side, with attempting to dump Erie stock on the Chesapeake & Ohio at a big profit.

On the transportation side they declared the Van Sweringens, once they had taken their profit, intended to recapture the Erie stock, divert the Chesapeake & Ohio's western traffic to the Erie to bolster that road up and thereby send its stock soaring again, whereupon they would be in a position to resell at another profit.

Saves C. & O. Money

In behalf of the Van Sweringens, it was testified that unification of the C. & O. and Erie would save the C. & O. $32,000,000 which it shortly will have to spend to improve its lines west of Cincinnati. By diverting heavy traffic to the double-track, low grade Erie lines, these improvements would not have to be made.

It was said Saturday that the commission's reasons for excluding the Erie from the Chesapeake & Ohio program were based entirely upon transportation considerations.

Regarded as Victory

In a statement made at Cleveland last night by interests close to the Van Sweringens, it was disclosed that while the promoters will not obtain all that they asked for, they will regard the reported decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission as a step toward completion of their gigantic rail program.

Exclusion of the Erie from the one phase of the program, it was indicated, is considered as at least a partial victory for the Van Sweringens.

Machine-made politicians seldom become able statesmen.

CHECK FIRE BY USE OF "BOOSTER" TANK

Firemen Save Cottage-st Dwelling with Emergency Equipment

Value of the "booster" water tank, a part of the equipment of the new pumper at the No. 2 fire station here, in fighting flames in the territory where there is no city water, was demonstrated yesterday afternoon when a fire which had engulfed the entire roof at the home of Elijah Canter, Cottage-st, was stopped at the second story. The loss on the dwelling, which is owned by the Kelly Island Lime & Stone Co., is estimated at between $200 and $300. The Canters had no furniture on the second floor and that on the first floor was removed before being damaged.

The blaze, which started from sparks on the shingle roof, had gained considerable headway when discovered by a neighbor who notified the family and sent in an alarm. Firemen from the No. 2 and 3 stations responded and there being no city water in the vicinity, the "booster" water tank on the No. 2 pumper was put into service.

A pump attached to the tank provides a steady stream of water from a one-inch hose, the supply of water being replenished by a bucket brigade. For more than an hour while the firemen fought the blaze, the tank continued to supply a steady stream.

ALLIES DIG IN TO HALT HOOVER RACE

born fighting. Conferences will be held here this week to map out eleventh-hour tactics and strategy. It is perhaps a coincident that the Senate's investigation of campaign expenditures has brought Frank O. Lowden to Washington at this more or less critical time. As Hoover's chief opponent, Lowden will enter the Kansas City convention with some 200 votes, and if Hoover is to be stopped it is Lowden who must be the rallying post for the opposition, at least in the early balloting.

Still Has Hopes

"The Allies" were admittedly surprised and discomfited by Secretary Mellon's public pat on the back for the Hoover candidacy, but at that they managed to extract some small comfort from the manner in which it was done.

Secretary Mellon clearly revealed that he still has hopes of drafting President Coolidge and the fact that he insisted that Pennsylvania's powerful bloc go to Kansas City unpledged and uncommitted was regarded by the allies as a significant and favorable omen.

An interesting story was going the political rounds in Washington today concerning the reason for Secretary Mellon's statement at Philadelphia. When Mr. Mellon left Washington, it was said that he had no intention of making the statement which he subsequently made. He had not planned, it was said, to mention the names of any candidates, but intended merely to compliment the administration of President Coolidge, and let it go at that.

Forced, It Is Said

Upon arriving in Philadelphia, the story goes, it was found that the anti-Mellon element in the organization had planned a surprise in the shape of a resolution indorsing the Hoover candidacy. This would have been embarrassing, and might have provoked a real row. In such circumstances, the trouble was averted by Mr. Mellon's agreeing to make the statement in the manner he did.

Whether the story is true or not, it is accepted at face value by the anti-Hoover camp in Washington. They consider that Mr. Mellon was more or less "forced" to make the statement for organization reasons, and in that fact they take considerable comfort. It shows, they say that after all Mr. Mellon is "not at heart" for his cabinet colleague, and that this fact may become more apparent in the next four weeks.

TWO-GUN BANDIT STAGES HOLDUP HERE

Lone Negro Invades Silver-st Grocery, Loots Cash Register

bag to the floor. In a flash the bandit's gun was directed at Halderman with a warning that he remain absolutely quiet.

Loots Only Drawer

After removing all of the money from the cash register with exception of several pennies, the negro made his getaway. As he left the store he jerked the door from the hands of a woman customer who, with her husband, was about to enter. Pushing her to one side and brandishing his gun menacingly in a farewell warning the negro disappeared across the street and went north along the Hocking Valley tracks.

A story told by Henry Keller, 206 Edwards-st, who with several other boys had boarded a northbound Hocking Valley freight train, that they had seen a negro answering to descriptions of the bandit, board the same train, is discredited by the police, who say a check made at the train dispacher's office showed that the train had left 20 minutes before the robbery took place.

Keller said the negro boarded the train and alighted at a coal station just south of Carey. At Carey the boys were taken off of the train by the village police, who were searching for the robber, and locked up at the ponce station. Told by the boys that the negro had gotten off of the train south of town, the police made a search but were unable to find any trace of him. The boys were released yesterday morning.

Witnesses Robbery

Mrs. John Richards, Avondale av, witnessed the robbery while sitting in her automobile in front of the store and frantically sounded the horn of the car in an effort to attract the attention of her husband, who with a number of others, were in a restaurant next door. She was unsuccessful, however, and it wasn't until after the negro had made his escape that the men learned of the robbery.

The negro was described by Peel as being about six feet tall, very black and having a scar on the right side of his face. He wore a long raincoat and a cap and appeared to be at ease.

Before opening the cash register, he warned Peel that he had come in to get the money and he intended to have it.

Surrounding towns and cities were notified of the holdoup by the police who made a hurry up run to the Kroger store and combed the railroad yards without securing any trace of the robber.

LOWDEN HAS SPENT $60,000 FOR RACE

Former Illinois Governor Tells Senate Committee Abcut Race

tributer only $12,500. There is a discrepancy there that hasn't been settled yet. Of the balance Mr. Clark and Custer have contributed the larger amounts. I contributed because I didn't want those old friends of mine to bear all the cost."

Lowden declared his policy in the primaries had been to avoid all larger campaigns. He said he refused to enter Oregon because his local supporters said it would require the establishment of an organization and the expenditure of money.

"I have felt all during the campaign that the Republican party had a hard fight on its hands this year and feeling that way, I decided not to do anything in this campaign that would, in event of my nomination, militate against my election."

No Effort in California

In touching on the "hard fight," facing the Republican party, Lowden said the two Democratic senators on the committee, Bratton and Barkley, "probably will agree with me even in the majority members don't."

"I do," Bratton retorted.

"I hope you're right," Barkley added.

"If I am not nominated, well, my troubles are over," Lowden added. "If I am nominated, my troubles have just begun.

"I am not going to add any troubles to my own in this primary fight if I can avoid it."

Lowden said he had made no effort to win California, "because we looked on that as Hoover's state."

Thomas P. Moffett leads an independent organization in New York, Lowden said. He knew nothing about its expenditures.

Senator McMaster, Republican, of South Dakota, brought out that Lowden's organization had spent but $125 to win his state's delegation. Lowden didn't know of it.

Senator Bratton questioned Lowden about the formation of a publishers' "Lowden for President" club. Ira H. Marshall of Chicago was its active head. The organization sought pledges from newspaper publishers to support Lowden editorially. The governor said he knew nothing of the club's activities.

Lowden told how he stayed out of all "favorite son" states.

"The only question in Indiana was whether Senator Watson would be a candidate," said Lowden. "When Senator Watson decided to become a candidate my friends decided they wouldn't enter me in the primary.

"Is the same true of Ohio?"

"Yes."

"Then you stayed out of the states where there were favorite son candidates?"

"Yes sir."

The old Missouri "bugaboo" came up again but unlike 1920, the story did not hurt Lowden. He was asked whether any money was sent into Missouri.

Has No Agreement

"I do not know of any," said Lowden. "If it was, it was only a very small sum."

Lowden denied stores that he had an agreement to support Vice President Dawes at the Kansas City convention.

"Do you have any understanding, tacit or otherwise, remote or approximate with Vice President Dawes relative to your delegates in case you are unable to win the nomination?"

"No sir, it has never even been discussed by us," Lowden replied. "Of course, the vice president and I are old friends."

"I got into this picture not because I was keen for it," Lowden added. "I got into this picture because I came to be looked upon as representing a great cause. I believe restoring agriculture to an equality with industry is the greatest question before the American people. I believe the next five or 10 years will tell whether the old fashioned independent Republican yeoman farmers, who are the backbone of civilization, shall continue to exist in the country or not. If agriculture is doomed, I can't see a bright future for the republic.

MANY CLOWNS AND TONS OF ELEPHANTS

Big circuses, such as the Hagenbeck-Wallace have found that much of their success depends upon elephants and clowns. The more "bulls" and "joeys" offered, the greater the reward at the ticket wagon. Hagenbeck-Wallace, which comes to Marion for afternoon and night shows on May 23rd, years ago discovered this secret of success and for 1928 have contracted the best clowns available and have also put forth much money in training elephants.

Prominent among the "Merry Andrews" with Hagenbeck-Wallace is Earl Shipley, who is rated one of the highest priced men that wear chalk-white. Shipley's salary compares favorable with the banker or business man and when he decides to retire he will not need to worry about his finances.

Shipley pays as much attention to clowning, as any business man does to his office or store. He is always in the market for new gags and ideas and pays the highest quotations for laugh producers.

Remarkable Results Achieved in Americanization Classes Conducted by Teacher at Her Home Here

SEVEN hundred persons who can neither read nor write!

That is the record for Marion County, the record that one woman in Marion is trying to eliminate or at least reduce to smaller proportions. The woman engaged in this interesting and unique undertaking is Mrs. Carrie Durr, for 28 years a teacher, who is conducting Americanization classes at her home 288 E. Church-st, and this year has a classe of six men and two women.

Eight years ago, three or four women in Marion saw the need for a school here to take care of the ever-growing influx of foreigners. A night school was started at Harding High School with a class of 60 pupils and three to four instructors.

Today the class has dwindled to eight pupils and one teacher, Mrs. Durr, but is still getting remarkable results. Last year a class of seven pupils learned to carry on a conversation in English and acquired a thorough knowledge of American government in a course extending from October to April.

Not All Foreigners

It should be clearly understood, however, that the 700 Marion County residents listed as having no knowledge of reading or writing are not all foreigners. There are native-born residents in this quota, which is given in figures contained in a report made by Mrs. Cora Wilson Stewart, who is waging a campaign against illiteracy in this country and especially in Kentucky.

"There is no need for discipline in the classes I have in the evenings, for they know what they are coming for and are eager to learn," was the reply given in answer to a question asked Mrs. Durr regarding the conduct of her pupils.

"One night several years ago, several Mexicans came to class in dirty overalls and other working apparel. It wasn't long, though, after they had seen how my other pupils dressed before they came dressed up in their Sunday best," the teacher relates.

In the eight years that the school has been conducted, 200 men and women have been brought into touch with Americanization. Each lesson costs 20 cents, but if the pupil is ambitious to learn and lacks the means for paying, the lessons are given gratis.

Books being used by the classes this year are sent to Mrs. Durr by the government. They are sent only to those teachers who are recognized by the government as capable of teaching Americanization.

Range of Instruction

Instruction in marketing, health, street signs, contagious disease signs, danger signs, registering mail, savings deposits, real estate transactions, in fact everything that seems just everyday routine to the average citizen but which appears intricate to the foreigner, is clearly outlined and illustrated in these books.

The first book is for beginners, the second for intermediates and the third for those taking out papers.

One young Italian, as soon as he could get a faint conception of the English language, amused Mrs. Durr by saying: "I must learn to speak English. I want to get a girl."

And there, says Mrs. Durr, is where so many of these boys and men who come to America must be cautioned. Not knowing the city they live in, they are not capable of choosing their companions at the outset. So many of them may make acquaintances as soon as they arrive and these are often not what they should be to give a correct impression of the American people as a whole.

One interesting incident related by Mrs. Durr is in connection with a young Italian who had just arrived in Marion and enrolled in her classes. He was bothered by a slight rash on his face. When asked what he had been eating, it was found that in Italy his diet had been entirely potatoes and spaghetti—foods that are mainly starch. Mrs. Durr suggested that he try fresh fruits, milk and bran and other foods not so rich in starches.

Follows Advice

It is an actual fact, she states, that the boy bought apples by the bushel and oranges by the dozen, and every morning he ate bran and drank milk. He looked upon Mrs. Durr as some sort of a magician when his skin slowly began to clear up and finally every trace of the rash disappeared.

This is just one of the incidents which Mrs. Durr can recall as evidence of the variety of benefits derived by her pupils in classes conducted during the last eight years.

Five German men, one German woman, an Italian boy and another foreign woman make up Mrs. Durr's class this year. One of her former pupils is now employed in a good position in Cleveland and one who was particularly ambitious is attending Marion Business College.

Classes are held two nights a week, two hours each night.

"They are so appreciative and enthusiastic that they can hardly be driven away," Mrs. Durr says, referring to her pupils.

Mrs. Durr received her Americanization teaching certificate from Bowling Green State Normal School in 1921 and has studied the subject extensively for a number of other years in other colleges.

Local Audience Hears Talk on Christian Science Topic Given by Dr. John M. Tutt

Member of Board of Lectureship of Mother Church Speaks Here Under Auspices of First Church of Christ, Scientist, of Marion

Under auspices of First Church of Christ, Scientist this city, a lecture was given last night at the Marion Theater by Dr. John M. Tutt, C. S. B., of Kansas City, Mo.

Dr. Tutt is a member of the Board of Lectureship of the Mother Church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The lecturer spoke in part as follows:

The Ministry of Healing

The Master, who taught his disciples to pray, also enjoined upon them to preach the gospel of salvation and to heal the sick. That he extended the ministry of healing to include all Christians is evident from his words, "These signs shall follow them that believe; . . they shall lay hands on the sick, and they shall recover." (Mark 16, v. 17 and 18). That injunction finds notable fulfillment in the lives of Christian Scientists today. The question arises: Is there such a thing as personal healing No and . . . No, because the healing and saving power is in Christ, impersonal Truth alone Yes, because the individual can, indeed must be healed and saved by the application of Truth to the lies of personal sense.

Healing the sick in Christian Science does not consist in projecting thoughts from one individual to another; it is not person over person, but Truth over error. It may be said truly that God, who made all, never made a sick man, nor made a man sick, and therefore there is no sick person to treat. Personal sense attacks the body by saying first to mortal man: "You are sick," thus inducing mortal man to say, "I am sick." Christian Science befriends mortal man and body by unmasking personal sense. It says to the sense of sickness "You are not in or on the man, but you are a lying sense." The disease seems to be in or on the body, but the material body, whether normal or abnormal, is but the externalized concept or object of human thought. The body is, therefore, as mental as if it were stated in terms of thought only. Hence, when dealing with mortal body we are really dealing with a phase of material mind. That fact brings the whole problem of disease on to the plane of mortal mind, where it belongs, and makes all disease and other abnormalities unendurable to right thought.

Does man believe error about himself or others? No. The claim that he does is a lie of personal sense. We command the situation, whatever the problem, if we recognize that all evil is error of belief, not of fact and we properly reduce all problems finally to terms of individual belief. The problems are largely errors of general belief which comprise the bulk of the evil with which we have to deal, but even the errors of general belief require of the individual the sense of possession or recognition before they can become to him a seeming reality. All the claims of evil are self constituted lies, masking as personal sense and thus setting up a claim of authenticity in human consciousness. But God divine Mind, the author of all things, does not allow these claims, not one of them; hence their unreality. The beliefs that we are the victims of sin or failure; the creatures of circumstance, environment, heredity; the possessors of disease; or that disease possesses us, are all lies which go down before Christian Science. If we release error it cannot cling to us.

Nothing occurs without law. The healing of sin sickness, disease, etc., requires the breaking, in human consciousness of some so called law of mortal belief. Now since these alleged laws are primarily mental, they are to be broken by Truth, or the law of God, divine Mind. It is obvious that the individual needs only to utilize the truth by applying it to the error, to become conscious of the supremacy of Truth and unconscious of the error. Thus mortal man's erroneous beliefs are corrected by Truth entering human consciousness. "The entrance of thy words giveth light; it giveth understanding unto the simple" (Psalm 119, v. 130). Whatever the alleged cause of any disease or sin, the evil and its effects will disappear in the light of realization of the truth.

No two cases, whether of sickness or other abnormality, are exactly alike. Whatever the alleged cause of the discordant condition, each case is biased and determined by the individual beliefs of the afflicted one. The so-called laws of pathology are secondary, because sin and disease can become operative upon mortal man only by his own consent, consciously or tacitly given. As Mrs. Eddy has expressed it: "The mind of the individual only can produce a result upon his body." (Christian Healing, page 6) Hence, each case must be treated separately and as peculiar to itself alone.

Jesus' ministry, though available to all mankind, was a personal one. In his Christian practice Jesus worked for individuals ready to receive Christ, Truth, and such cases only Jesus ac-

Doctor Found What is Best for Thin, Constipated People

As a family doctor at Monticello, Illinois, the whole human body, not any small part of it, was Dr. Caldwell's practice. More than half his "calls" were on women, children and babies. They are the ones most often sick. But their illnesses were usually of a minor nature—colds, fevers, headache, biliousness—and all of them required first a thorough evacuation. They were constipated.

In the course of his 47 years' practice (he was graduated from Rush Medical College back in 1875), he found a good deal of success in such cases with a prescription of his own containing simple laxative herbs with pepsin. In 1892 he decided to use this formula in the manufacture of a medicine to be known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and in that year his prescription was first placed on the market.

The preparation immediately had as great a success in the drug stores as it previously had in his private practice. Now, the third generation is using it. Mothers are giving it to their children who were given it by their mothers. Every second of the working day some one somewhere is going into a drug store to buy it. Millions of bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are being used a year.

Its great success is based on merit, on repeated buying, on one satisfied user telling another. There are thousands of homes in this country that are never without a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and we will see you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.—Adv.

REPORT DRY AGENTS COERCING DRUGGISTS

Treasury Department Officials Say Men Make Threats Without Authority

Washington, May 14—Prohibition agents are conducting an apparently unauthorized campaign of coercion and threat against druggists and other dealers in non-intoxicating beverages in an effort to enforce the Volstead Act, it was learned today.

Druggists have been warned by agents that the sale of certain non-intoxicating substances, such as preparations of juniper oil commonly known as as "gin drops" may result in the loss of their licenses to sell medicinal liquor.

Sales of this character were authorized by dry agents as "compounding a felony," although a majority of violations of the prohibition laws constitute only misdemeanors.

Officials declared that statements of this kind are not authorized and are being made without the knowledge of the Treasury Department. It was explained by Prohibition Commissioner James M. Doran that where substances are sold and labeled as liquor flavoring there is a violation and such transactions will be stopped by the government.

Officials admitted, however, that there is no violation of the Volstead Act in selling non-intoxicating beverages, even though they may later be used in combination with alcohol for drinking purposes.

Daily Proverb—"Withhold not good from them to whom it is due, when it is in the power of thine hand to do it."

Senator Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, has come out for Governor Smith, of New York, for president. But then, Al can't expect luck to break with him always.

Conditions in New York City will soon be normal once more. The International Ladies' Garment Workers' union has voted another strike in the cloak and dress industry in the metropolis.

The highest court in Italy has ruled that poker is a game of chance. That court might change its mind if it ever sat in with some of the local leather-apron exponents of the game.

A cable says the Champs Elysees, the pride of Paris and probably the most beautiful avenue in the world, is all torn up as a prelude to its rebuilding. That settles it! No vacation for us in Paris this year!

After all, it was Carmela Ponselle, and not Rosa, you didn't hear over the radio Sunday evening because her contract with the Metropolitan Opera company bars broadcasting. Had it been the latter, you would have missed about the finest treat the radio affords.

A London cable tells how five tons of gold valued at $2,640,000 were unloaded from a steamer and hauled through the streets of that city on a truck with no fixed bayonets, no armed escort and not even a squad of detectives. The London criminal world must be absolutely lacking in initiative.

A Paris cable states that "an American journalist" was beaten and robbed of $130 on a train enroute from Paris to Le Havre, to which port he was going to sail for home. "An American journalist" with $130 is enough to cause us to sit up and take notice, but "an American journalist" leaving Paris for home with $130 is going too far. Our credulity will never stand a strain like that.

A Los Angeles court has awarded Mrs. Esther Lyons a judgment for $300 against her bridge partner, Mrs. Gena Robinson. The latter finessed the former's spade lead, and when Mrs. Lyons complained, Mrs. Robinson gave her a "push" in the face. Three hundred dollars would be so excessive as a penalty for a mere "push," as Mrs. Robinson described it, that we are about forced to conclude that we have herein a court finding on the proper penalty for the finessing of a partner's lead.

The "Niccolini Madonna," by Raphael, a panel thirty inches high and twenty-two inches wide, brought $875,000 at a London art sale, one day last week, an Englishman being the purchaser. After all the hard luck stories we have had from London, it's comforting to know that one of our British cousins has been able to escape the tax collector.

In addition to favoring legislation compelling every aspirant for "the privilege of bowing before a bored king and queen" to pay a fat fee into the United States treasury for letters of recommendation greasing the way into throne rooms, Congressman Victor Berger, of Milwaukee, thinks King George and other monarchs should levy a tax of $1,000 on every American woman who succeeds in crashing the palace gates, suggesting that such a tax would assist Europe in paying the war debt she owes us. Tut, tut, Victor! A goodly proportion of the social climbers are not people of wealth. Why should a good Socialist handicap them and play into the hands of such of the rich as are thus inclined by making their snobbery the more exclusive?

Disabled Officers' Bill.

The senate Tyson-Fitzgerald bill to retire with three-quarters pay all emergency officers of the World war who are thirty per cent permanently disabled has passed the house without a record vote and without the slightest change and now goes to the president for his signature.

The bill, if it becomes a law, will benefit 3,251 disabled emergency officers and cause the government to expend an additional $2,294,265 annually. When it is considered that this will mean but a few cents over $705, on the average, to disabled officers, it will have to be conceded that the compensation to be paid annually to those disabled to the extent specified can not be considered excessive.

We do not pretend to know how the percentage of permanent disability is to be arrived at, but if the method is in any degree equitable, it is little enough to pay those who have been so unfortunate as to be in position to qualify for the benefits to be derived as a result of the legislation. Who of those free from permanent disability would be willing to sacrifice such a percentage of their powers for any such sum as the average beneficiary under the provisions of the bill will receive?

Putting the proposition in this way, we believe, will give the truest and best line upon the worthiness of the proposal as well as its fairness.

In Recognition of a Great Work.

It may be predicted that the country as a whole will approve the action of the senate in passing the bill to grant an annual pension of $5,000 to the widow of the late Major General Leonard Wood in lieu of the smaller pension she is receiving from the war department as the widow of the former governor general of the Philippines. It is anticipated in Washington that it will have the concurrence of the lower house of congress, and receive the signature of the president.

Practically the entire life of Leonard Wood after the attainment of his majority was devoted to his country, and the estate left by him was small. He not only did his duty faithfully and well, but his administrations in Cuba and the Philippines were signally able. His devotion to duty during his administration in the Philippines was no less a sacrifice of his life for his country than it would have been had he died upon the field of battle.

As a mark of recognition of the splendid services General Wood rendered Cuba following the Spanish-American war, the little island government has awarded a pension to Mrs. Wood. It seems to us that a great and wealthy land such as ours can not afford to do less in appreciation of the sacrifice the general made by accepting the appointment as governor general of the Philippines, when it was held out to him that his administration in Cuba demonstarted that he was the one man in all the land best fitted for the position and appeal was made to his patriotism to accept it. He went to the islands as a patriotic duty, and as a patriotic duty he carried on in the face of many obstacles which would have discouraged a less able, a less courageous, man and accomplished splendidly.

No country can afford to withhold recognition of such services as General Wood performed, and by fate's decree the method proposed in this senate bill is the one practical method left in which recognition can be manifested.

In the face of the testimony of Admiral Charles F. Hughes before the naval sub-committee—that the testing course, in which the S-4 was sunk with all hands aboard by the coast guard destroyer, Paulding, was marked by large can buoys painted white; that the coast guard knew that the course was being used for testing and that the periscope of the submarine was visible for a mile—one just about has to conclude, regardless of the whitewashing recently administered, that somebody wasn't looking.

Dr. George J. Smith, chairman of the New York board of education, says the world would go to the bow-wows in fifty years if left to the control of women, "because it is impossible for women to master mathematics." Huh! Just as though any woman cared about oil mathematics so long as she can count on her fingers!

Mussolini and Teaching of English.

Word comes from Rome that Premier Mussolini is doing his utmost to encourage the study of English in the schools of Italy.

This might be taken as an evidence of recession on the part of the premier from his stand for all things Italian, but we would rather take it as an indication of his wisdom. Mussolini, no matter what else may be said of him, is a close student of conditions; not conditions in Italy alone, but world conditions. He lives to learn, and he has learned and is learning much to which other European rulers—for Mussolini is a ruler if there is one in Europe today—have closed their eyes. And among other matters he has come to recognize is the steady trend throughout western and southern Europe to the use of English. There is scarcely an Italian city or village in which this trend may not be noted. The American traveler, who is the most profitable to Europe of all travelers, has no trouble in dealing in an Italian store, restaurant or hotel. He finds English spoken on all sides—and good English, too. Mussolini is wise enough to appreciate this advantage to his countrymen, and he proposes to encourage it.

And it's just possible that Mussolini has a feeling that the time is near at hand when English will be the one language in general use throughout western and southern Europe, and that he proposes that Italy shall "get the jump" on all other European lands in meeting that situation.

Blaming the wife of the governor general for government house extravagances, the Canadian house of commons, among other items, cited $250,000 for two private railway cars, $250,000 for the Quebec citadel summer home, $2,600 for garden plants and bulbs and $260 for winding the governor general's clock. It's a cinch that Lady Willingdon never acquired a spending habit like that by emulating King George and Queen Mary.

Vagrant Verse.

NIGHT.

Night cometh. Priestess of silence, calmest Night!
Gray stoled Eve with rapt face glides before,
And entering the Twilight's Gothic door
Fills all the flower shrined aisles with tapers light,
And stills the vesper choir of songsters bright,
Incenses rise from thuribles swung o'er
The silent worshipers, and now once more
The chant inspired steals through the temple's height.
With fanon and dim robes she cometh now,
Telling her rosary of stars whose rays
Are caught from empyrean fires that blaze
And glow in awfulness. Upon her brow
Serene, Diana sets her crescent seal,
And all the weary hosts of mortals kneel.

Like some cathedral vast, or mosque, the domes
And minarets of mountains high are shown
Round Nature's broad and sapphire colored zone
In sheeny, silvery lighted monochromes,
Where wandering shepherds raise their humble homes,
The waters chant their deep trisagion,
The decuman's grand nocturne to the throne.
'Tis thus that Night in trailing vestments comes
And lessons Man, who looks with doubting mien,
For, like the worshipers of Orient lands,
Lo, to the East she turns with folded hands
And lifted veil, in attitude serene,
And, in the solemn passing orison,
Teaches the will of Him, "Thy will be done."

PREPARING THE GUILLOTINE.

Keeping Organs in Position.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

It has been well said that "we are fearfully and wonderfully made." More and more am I impressed with the truth of this saying.

Consider the human trunk. The upper half is supported by a slender, flexible column of piled up bones, the vertebrae. The bulging, cylindrical chest rests on this slight foundation.

Between the chest and another bulging group of bones, the pelvis and hips, is a great space, called the abdominal cavity. Contained within this cavity are the liver, spleen, stomach, pancreas, intestines and, in the case of women, their special organs. The kidneys are in a place of their own, but in a space which readily communicates with the abdomen.

It is remarkable that these organs, some of them bulky and heavy, are so suspended, supported and secured, that they maintain their proper positions in spite of the jolts and knocks, and all the circumstances of life. Gravity, accident and disease pass harmlessly over these structures. The average person goes through life unconscious of the abdominal organs.

Not every individual is so fortunate. There may be loss of support and a tumbling down of these vital organs. In an occasional case they may be crowded into the bottom of the abdominal cavity and even into the hollow of the pelvis.

When such a thing happens there are many disagreeable and sometimes serious symptoms. Function is disturbed and life itself may be threatened by this calamity.

The name "enteroptosis" has been given this condition. It is a well-selected one. "Ptosis" is a Greek word, meaning falling or prolapse, and "enteron" is another word from the same language, meaning intestine. Enteroptosis, then, describes exactly what takes place. The abdominal organs fall from their normal position and, in an extreme case, drop into the most dependent part of the abdomen.

There may be few signs, but the group of symptoms described as "dyspepsia" is the usual result. The associated constipation is a thing which may be the cause or result. There may be such accumulation of waste material in the bowel as to make a heavy, dragging mass, capable of pulling the intestine from its normal position.

Of course this is but one of many factors. Perhaps the chief one is the too common neglect of the individual to control properly the abdominal muscles. Watch your own habits—when you stand, do you hold in your abdomen or do you let it pouch outward? "Pot-belly" is likely to be a fault which may result in enteroptosis. Unless the abdominal wall is kept in place, limiting the cavity and affording support to the organs, there is a likelihood of trouble.

In short, enteroptosis is another one of the many human ills which can be prevented by proper living and proper physical conduct.—Copyright, 1928, Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Eskimos Have a Hard Time.

BY TEMPLE MANNING.

When you're very blue because you haven't money enough to afford three motor cars, a staff of servants and two or three summer homes, think of the Eskimos and the life of terrible hardship that they are forced to live. The contrast may cheer you. The Eskimo hardly knows from day to day whether he will have food tomorrow or starve to death. For in spite of the amulets, in spite of the many prayers they make to the spirits of the land and sea, the mortality among these people is very high.

Indeed, the economic necessity is such that girl babies often are killed at birth, unless they have been already spoken for in marriage. And the life of the woman is even harder than that of the man. For to her lot falls all the work of the community with the exception of the hunting and fishing. She must "keep all clothes in constant repair, no light task; she fetches snow for water, thaws meat at the lamp, cuts up meat for the dogs, heats and presses blubber for oil, and keeps the lamp at a certain temperature. If it is allowed to get too hot, the roof begins to drip, and has to be plastered with fresh snow from within. She makes all the shoes by chewing pieces of hide as hard as wood until soft enough for boot soles." So you see the Eskimo woman has harder work, and less thanks, than almost any other woman on the globe.—Copyright, 1928, Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Editorial Opinion.

THE GROWING DOLLAR.

While the treasury plans to reduce the size of the one dollar bill, the dollar is growing larger in value and promises to continue to grow. On the basis of the cost of living index of the Industrial Conference board, it is worth more now than it has been for nearly five years. Its purchasing power has increased to such an extent that it is now reported to be worth 92.1 cents.

But to the casual observer sixty-two cents must seem a low appraisal of the value of a dollar, which is commonly understood to be worth one dollar—nothing more nor less. It should be perceived, however, that this valuation is arrived at by comparison with the pre-war dollar. Taking this as a measuring rod, the post-war dollar of July, 1920, was worth only 48.9 cents. That was the lowest point it reached and, paradoxically, the dollar then was not worth half a dollar.

Since that date 13.2 cents have been added to its purchasing power. Though the dollar is still worth less than six bits, as compared to its pre-war ancestor, its material growth is gratifying and it is to be hoped that it will grow bigger. And still these reports on its value in terms of its buying power do not wholly satisfy the curiosity of the man who owns the dollar. He realizes that the extent of its growth depends upon what is bought with it. For example, the automobile dollar has grown more rapidly than dollars that are used to pay the rent or to buy the ordinary necessities of life.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

DECLINE OF CYCLING HERE.

In the United States, with its 20,000,000 motor vehicles, bicycle-riding has become too dangerous to be indulged in as a recreation. There was no better exercise in its prime. By bicycle one could explore the country, taking byways and towpaths as well as highways, and penetrate sylvan nooks inaccessible to motorists today. The cyclist was not a prey to fears about his safety on the road, now after a day in heavy traffic the motorist returns thanks for escaping the hospital. A great sport went out in the United States when cycling was abandoned.

In England and on the continent cycling is still a popular sport, and statesmen as well as school boys are seen astride the little leather saddle. Women ride fearlessly. No less than 6,000,000 cyclists have been listed in England by the Touring club. It is getting ready to celebrate a golden jubilee in June. A feature is to be a relay race around England, Wales and Scotland. At the finish, on the birthday of the Prince of Wales, who rides a bicycle himself, there will be a distribution of prizes.

In the Scandinavian countries bicycles are in general use. All the monarchs ride as well as most of their subjects. Girls flit along the country paths. Men no more on the sunny side of 60 feel about scornfully. In Europe there is not a towing car to every five persons. The rights of cyclists are recognized and enforced. Even pedestrians have some consideration. An elderly person on a bicycle is not a ridiculous sight—he may be the prime minister, or a professor of logic, or a society leader. What adult in the States dares to ride a bicycle on the highway unless he is a mechanic going to work in overalls?—New York Times.

The "Flat Earth" Quibble.

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

"There is much discussion at present about the world being round, or spheroidal. I understand there is a 'Zionist,' who offers $5,000 to any one who can prove it to be a spheroid. I believe it to be spheroid, but it is hard for the average layman to prove it conclusively. I think it would be a good idea if you would write an article on this subject, stating the conclusions of 'scientific men.'—John D. T. Davis, East Palestine, Ohio."

If you think of trying for that $5,000 I advise you first to make sure of having a competent umpire.

And if you wish to judge for yourself the competence of the "earth-flatteners" to understand the evidence, ask the first one you meet to go around the world with you, traveling always eastward—or westward—and when you get back home, ask him how he accounts for the fact that he arrives home from the west, if you travelled east; or from the east, if you travelled west. Make him show you how that could happen in travelling always in the same direction on a flat. With a little knowledge of physics, geography and astronomy you will be able to expose every dodge by which he attempts to escape.

Or, point out the North star to him, and then take him on a trip toward the North pole, and see if he can give a satisfactory reason, other than the rotundity of the earth, why the star rises higher and higher above the horizon as you go north—reaching the zenith itself if you attain the pole—Then take him to South America, where he will see constellations in the sky that are not visible from North America, the northern constellations sinking as the southern ones rise, and make him explain how that could occur on a flat earth. He may do a lot of squirming, but you will have him impaled.

These are simple proofs, like that furnished by the apparent sinking of a receding ship as it passes beyond the horizon. There are more subtle ones. For instance, the outline of the earth's shadow falling upon the moon during a lunar eclipse is always circular, no matter what side of the earth may at the time of the eclipse be turned toward the moon. A flat earth could not project such a shadow, but a globular one must necessarily do it.

The earth is one of a family of planets circulating like it around the sun; every one of these is visibly globular or spheroidal; why should the earth alone be flat, or how could it so widely differ from the others when all must have had a similar origin? Then go deeper and consider the fact that masses of matter if left to the control of the mutual attractions of their constituent particles, always assume a spheroidal form, because that is a state of equilibrium. You see this on a small scale when falling rain rounds itself into drops, or falling particles of molten lead in a shot tower assume the same shape. The telescope shows in the remotest depths of space, great assemblages of stars which, under the influence of the mutual attraction of their members have taken the form of gigantic globular clusters.

The proof of the earth's roundity merges into that of its rotation. Measurement shows that the earth is swollen around the equator, and drawn in at the poles. The ordinary principles of mechanics show that this is an inevitable effect of centrifugal force arising from its rotation. It has been proved that the direction of the principal winds is shifted by the effects of the earth's rotation.

At the National Academy of Science in Washington you can show the flat-earth champion a "Foucault Pendulum" which renders the rotation of the globe of the earth visible by shifting the plane of its vibration round in the direction of the hands of a watch as the globe turns the other way under it.

There is no room left to discuss the bearing of these facts on the form of the earth, but see if you can not think them out for yourself.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. MCINTYRE.

New York, May 14.—Diary of a modern Pepys: At my typewriter and came a fellow I know but slightly to look over my shoulder. When I removed a sheet he picked it up, inquiring, "Do you mind?" and began to read. When I replied I did very much, he seemed nettled.

So through the town and saw among others afoot Count Max de Polignac, Al Woods, Harry Acton and Theodore, the head-waiter. And it appeared in several blocks in the Forties that every other place was an unlicensed pub, so many staggering from this door and that as though befuddled.

In the evening to dinner with Peggy Hoyt and Aubrey Eads and later to the pier to see a barque sail at midnight, and with my wife stopped in to see Henry L. Doherty at his roof bungalow, but no one home. Then walked through Battery park, very beautiful in the moonlight.

Of all foreigners arriving in New York, those who most readily learn English are the Russians. They acquire a working knowledge in a few weeks and several months later speak it fluently. Russians, being adept linguists, are able to pick up any language and in a short time make it hum. They are the only people to speak Chinese and Japanese successfully. Their own language is so complicated, all others are comparatively a snap.

Within the year, the sweep of Modernistic furniture has confounded critics. The bold it has taken here and abroad has been astonishing. The newest homes and the newest offices are now equipped in this style. Old furniture is going where many think it should have gone long ago—to the scrap heap. The world no longer believes art must be a century old to be worthwhile.

Perhaps the greatest impetus was given the movement with the launching of the liner, Ile de France, which is Modernistic throughout. The modern hoop-la in decoration has a sparkling appeal, a Venetian luster, and what is highly important, there is more comfort in the furnishings.

The most striking atelier in New York is in the new manner. The front is of solid glass, both clear and frosted, and the furniture is metal painted silver and pink with walls of radiant mirrors. The surface indications are that of a shiny silk hat.

The modernistic idea is thoroughly revolutionary and bears no resemblance to another period. The idea came like the radio—all of a sudden. The lighting is indirect, usually hidden in bowls and vases and can be changed from a soft glow to a blinding dazzle. Department stores now exhibit modernistic furniture. It is machine made beauty in a machine age and rings the bell.

A rich young bachelor has a Park Avenue apartment in the modernistic mode throughout. Floors are carpeted in a creamy gray. Not a lighting ornament is visible, yet the apartment can be flooded to ballroom gaiety or toned down to a boudoir hue. The walls of one room—he calls it the Gilda Gray—are of pressed split straw of various colorings and designed as waving palm trees. The walls of another are of egg shells dipped into some shiny solution giving it an odd crackly surface. The beds have swirling plume-like head boards, purple, green and brilliant red. Tables have mirror tops that flash and sparkle. The chairs are covered with pigskin, deep and comfortable, which is more than can be said of the ram-roddish early American or Louis XV. The entire effect blends nicely with the modern idea of architecture, music dress and other thousand sos.

Knowing when to use the parachute and how to use it with lightning speed may mean the difference between life and death to a flyer. What we all need is a parachute, so to speak. We frequently take a great deal of credit for sticking to some things that we might better abandon. We stick to stock past the time when we ought to sell out. We stay by a job and give ourselves credit for persistence, when the sensible thing would be to find another job. We too often define persistence, in our own minds, as persistence in one thing or on one job. It may mean, properly, persistence in finding the right thing or the right place. And sometimes a parachute is better than persistence.

It is pleasant now and then to find a man who acts on his own advice. Jardine, secretary of agriculture, is the man who is supposed to know his business and give advice to 6,000,000 farmers. Not only does he do that but it is pleasant to find that he runs a 220-acre farm in Kansas—by mail. Of course he has a tenant, but Secretary Jardine doesn't leave it all to the tenant. He practices farming himself. Between the two of them they make a real success of it.

"I think we'll get on better if we get off and walk."

Having done so, they had gone hardly more than a block when the car they had left overtook them and went on.

"Well, I'll be jiggered," said the impatient ex-passenger, "I thought we'd get on better if we got off, but we'd have been better off if we'd stayed on."

STUDENT TAKES LIFE

Peekskill, N. Y., May 14—Police learned today that Roland F. Lewis, 19-year-old Columbia University sophomore whose body was found hanging from a tree on a farm near here, had been brooding over the fact that his father had refused to let him visit Europe this summer. They declared he was a suicide.

PAINT FUMES CAUSE DEATH

Chicago, May 14—Odor of fresh paint was blamed today for the death of a 17-day-old baby. The child, one of the twins, was stricken soon after its father, Eduardo Gonzales, painted the kitchen. Fumes of the new paint, it is believed, contained enough poison to kill the baby.

The average man is candid in admitting the faults of others.

$118,000 Cut in Corporation Taxes Listed on Bill When Two Insurgents Bolt Ranks

Vote May Be Reversed in Senate Later. It Is Belief; Final Action Not Likely Before Tuesday; Extensive Debate Is Seen

Washington, May 14—The new tax reduction bill today carried an $118,000,000 cut in corporation taxes, the greatest relief proposed for American business in any revenue measure drafted since the war.

The slashes included an $82,000,000 reduction in the regular corporation tax rate, which was dropped from 13½ to 12½ per cent, $12,000,000 reduction through increase of exemptions from $2,000 to $3,000 and $24,000,000 through adoption of a graduated scale of taxes for small corporations.

The $24,000,000 graduated scale slash, applying to corporations with incomes up to $15,000, was not approved by the administration and was inserted in the bill only because several stalwart Republican senators were absent when the vote was taken. The result was 40 to 38, two Insurgents—McMaster and Norbeck of South Dakota—voting with the Democrats.

The administration will make another effort to eliminate this item from the bill. Senator Smoot, Republican of Utah, Republican finance leader, announced he expected the Senate would reverse itself when the second vote is taken.

This cut increased the total tax reduction, carried in the bill, to $227,000,000 just $24,000,000 more than the limit fixed by the administration. It will be $100,000,000 short, however, of the tax reduction figure desired by the Democrats.

The graduated scale would begin with five per cent on corporation incomes up to $7,000, with a $3,000 exemption allowed. A seven per cent tax would be levied on the portion of incomes above $7,000 but below $12,000 and nine per cent on that above $12,000 but below $15,000. The normal 12½ per cent rate would apply to incomes above $15,000.

With the single exception of this scale, the administration has controlled all tax rates, through its alliance with the Insurgent bloc. Two Insurgents bolted on that one vote, carrying victory to the Democrats, but the result may be reversed later. Otherwise, the Democrats have been defeated on every suggestion they made for reducing taxes.

Only one major tax issue must be decided and then the bill will be ready for passage. This will be the fixing of new surtax rates, applying particularly to the brackets between $14,000 and $70,000. Both the Republicans and Democrats have proposed a $25,000,000 cut in these brackets but their plans differ radically. The Democrats would give the larger share of the relief to incomes below $52,000 while the Republican plan scattered it clear up to $100,000 with the higher brackets getting a larger reduction than in the Democratic measure.

Extensive debate was expected on this item with the probability that a final vote cannot be reached before tomorrow.

LOCAL ELKS GOING TO BEALE FUNERAL

Last Rites for Charter Member To Be Held in Delaware Tuesday

Members of Marion Lodge of Elks will meet at the lodge quarters at 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon and go to Delaware for the funeral of John S. Beale, which will be held at 2:30 o'clock, it was announced today.

The local Elks will attend the services in a body and the Elks' funeral rites will be conducted by officers of Marion Lodge.

Mr. Beale was a charter member and past exalted ruler of the local lodge, having been active in Elks affairs here while engaged in railway work in Marion. His home was in Delaware.

CONGRESS TAKES ITS TIME TO DO WORK

Dozen Important Measures Await Final Action in House and Senate

Washington, May 14—Congress continued to grind away at a leisurely pace today with adjournment tentatively set for May 26 and a dozen important measures still awaiting final action.

Leaders were confident that most of the big bills would be disposed of unless the threatened Boulder Dam filibuster in the Senate wrecks the program. There was a possibility of adjournment being set back another week.

The Mississippi River flood control bill is the only one of the "Big Four" of the present session—flood control, tax reduction, farm relief, and Boulder Dam—to reach the White House. With President Coolidge's signature promised for the flood bill during the week, both houses prepared to close up the McNary-Haugen bill by approving the conference report.

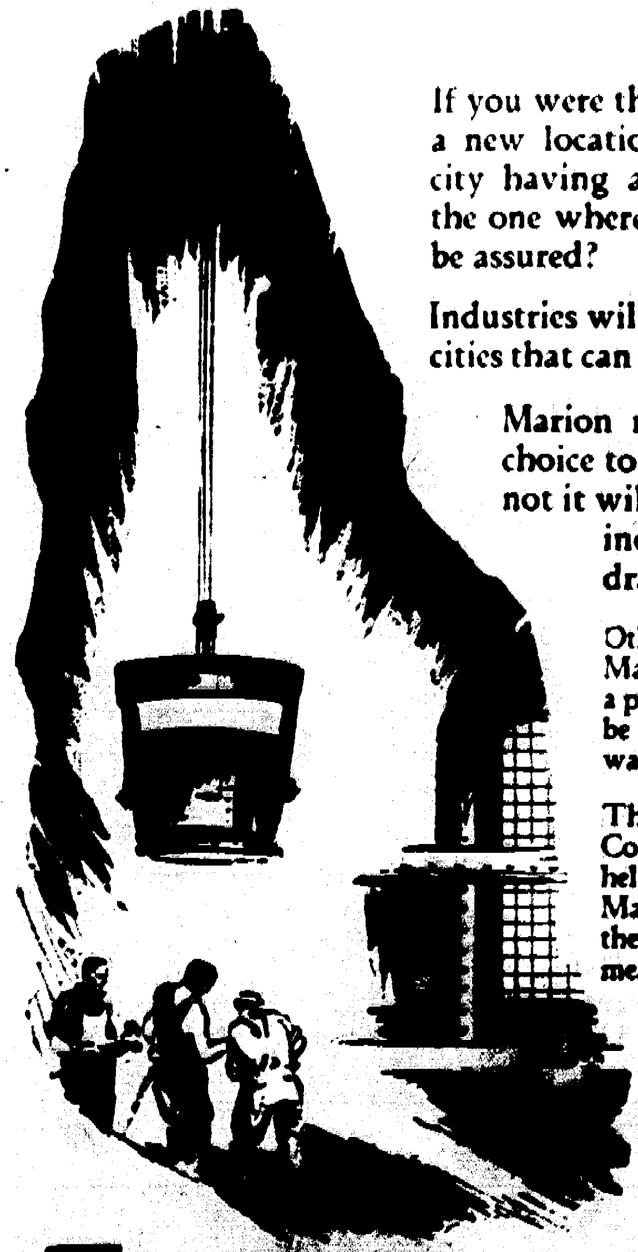
You Can Decide the Future Today



If you were the head of an industry looking for a new location where would you go—to the city having an adequate supply of gas or to the one where permanent gas service could not be assured?

Industries will not take chances. They select the cities that can offer them the most in fuel supply.

Marion now awaits a decision. It has a choice to make that will decide whether or not it will be ranked among the prosperous industrial centers or be content to drag along.

Other cities are making efforts to attract Marion's industries. If these cities can offer a permanent supply of gas Marion will soon be faced with industrial and employment want.

The choice rests with Marion. Your Gas Company is ready to do all in its power to help Marion grow. Gas is the lifeblood of Marion's industries and your recognition of the fact that GAS IS WORTH MORE means assuring the future of Marion.

Suffers Running Sore 10 Years

Old Time Remedy Starts Healing in Five Days

Every person suffering from old sores and ulcers should know about the mighty healing power of Peterson's Ointment. Thousands have used it with joyful success after treatments and other remedies have failed.

"I am not much of a writer, but will give you a good ad for Peterson's Ointment if you care to publish it. I am a woman twenty-four years of age, and have had a running sore just above my ankle for over 10 years. I tried doctors and almost every kind of a salve, but failed to heal it. A year ago I got a box of your Peterson's Ointment and in five days time I could tell that it was healing. It took only one 75 cent box and two sixty cent boxes in all. So I advise every man, woman or child to use Peterson's Ointment, for it is worth the price and is good to keep on hand."—Mrs. Fay Korenchuk, Chicago, Ill.

That's the kind of a healing ointment Peterson's is and one 75 cent box from your druggist will prove it.—Adv.

A blotchy, pimply skin is not normal. Don't continue to be embarrassed by it. To thousands, Resinol Ointment has brought a quick clearing away of skin affections of one kind or another. Misery of Kidney Trouble Ended By This New Konjola

Columbus Citizen Says He Would Have Awful Pains in Limbs; Now in Good Health

MR. WILLIAM F. COLLMER

"I am entirely free of the dreadful miseries of kidney and bladder trouble since I completed a treatment of Konjola," said Mr. William F. Collmer, 205 Midland Avenue, Columbus, Ohio.

"My kidneys were in such a weak condition that I had to get up three and four times every night. I suffered agonies from bladder irritation and burning sensations. The pains in my back over my kidneys kept me in constant misery and whenever I stooped over, hundreds of spots appeared before my eyes. My feet and knees would swell to almost twice their normal size and it was impossible for me to walk. All during the day sharp pains would shoot up and down my limbs. I tried every way to get rid of this awful disease but nothing ever helped me.

"When I read the papers about Konjola I decided to try it. The first two bottles gave me more relief than all the other medicines I had ever taken. My kidneys grew stronger and I never have to get up during the night any more. The pains in my back are gone and that bladder irritation and burning sensation completely disappeared. Finally the swelling in my feet and limbs went down and since I completed the treatment of this medicine I am never bothered with kidney trouble in any way. I know what this medicine will do and am glad to be able to recommend and indorse it."

Konjola is different than any other known remedy in this section. It contains twenty-two juices extracted from natural plants which invigorate the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels to a more healthy action. The effect of Konjola on the entire system brings amazing relief in cases of suffering that had been going on for years. At the same time many weak and rundown systems have been restored to a new state of health through this compound. Such a vast number of men and women in this city have told of their experience with this new medical product until now Konjola is the most highly indorsed medicine that is known in this vicinity.

Konjola is strongly recommended here in Marion at Stump & Sham Pharmacy, and is also being sold by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this section.—Adv.

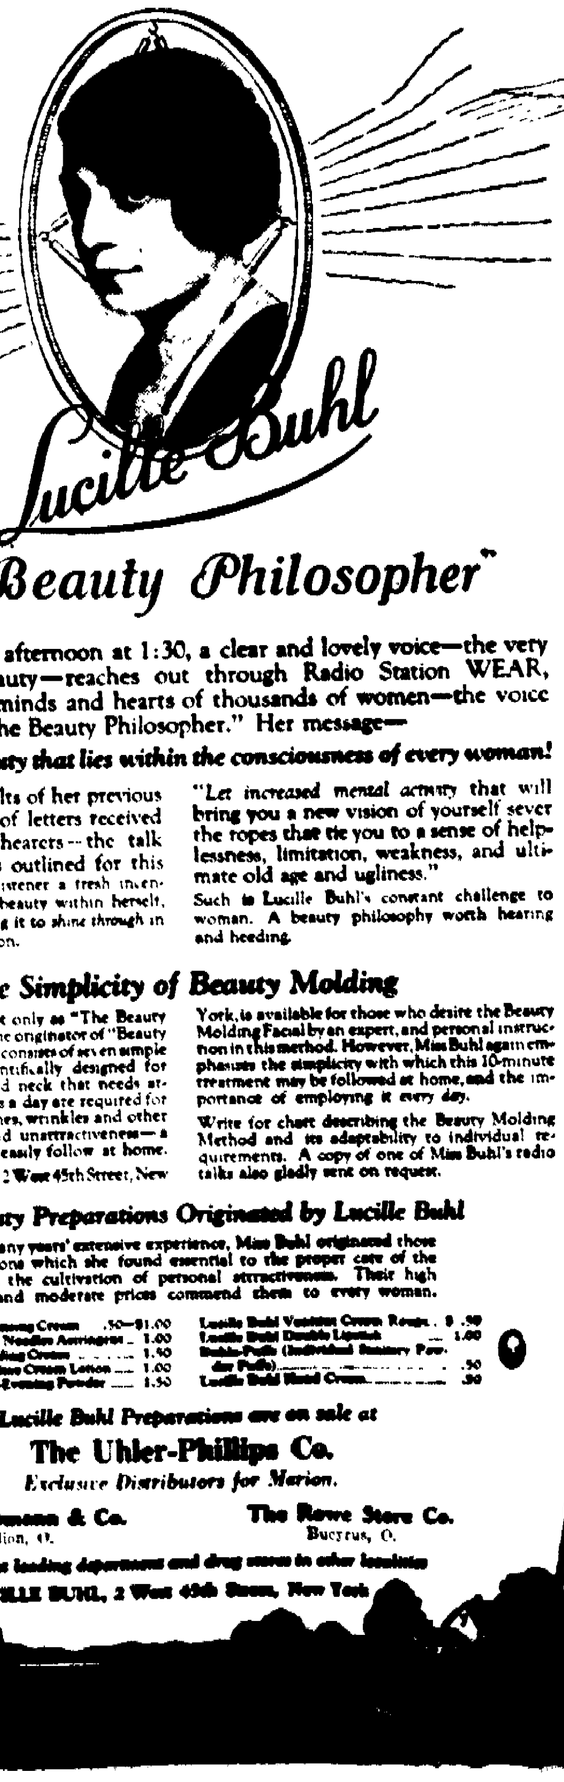
"New Beauty for the New Woman"
--a radio message to all women by



Lucille Buhl

"The Beauty Philosopher"

EVERY Tuesday afternoon at 1:30, a clear and lovely voice—the very symbol of beauty—reaches out through Radio Station WEAR, Cleveland, to the minds and hearts of thousands of women—the voice of Lucille Buhl, "The Beauty Philosopher." Her message—

The unlimited beauty that lies within the consciousness of every woman!

Judging from the results of her previous messages—thousands of letters received from grateful radio hearers—the talk which Miss Buhl has outlined for this week should give every listener a fresh incentive for seeking out the beauty within herself, releasing it, and permitting it to shine through in glowing outward expression.

"Let increased mental activity that will bring you a new vision of yourself sever the ropes that tie you to a sense of helplessness, limitation, weakness, and ultimate old age and ugliness."

Such is Lucille Buhl's constant challenge to woman. A beauty philosophy worth hearing and heeding.

The Simplicity of Beauty Molding

Lucille Buhl is famous not only as "The Beauty Philosopher," but also as the originator of "Beauty Molding," a treatment that consists of seven simple molding movements scientifically designed for every part of the face and neck that needs attention. Only ten minutes a day are required for the gradual removal of lines, wrinkles and other facial signposts of age and unattractiveness—a method any woman can easily follow at home.

The Lucille Buhl Studio, at 2 West 45th Street, New York, is available for those who desire the Beauty Molding Facial by an expert, and personal instruction in this method. However, Miss Buhl again emphasizes the simplicity with which this 10-minute treatment may be followed at home, and the importance of employing it every day.

Write for chart describing the Beauty Molding Method and its adaptability to individual requirements. A copy of one of Miss Buhl's radio talks also gladly sent on request.

The Beauty Preparations Originated by Lucille Buhl

Out of many years' extensive experience, Miss Buhl originated those preparations which she found essential to the proper care of the skin and the cultivation of personal attractiveness. Their high quality and moderate prices commend them to every woman.

"I understand, John. It was your idea that you and I should divide equally whatever profit might arise from the deal, was it not? Well, I'm a reasonable man—even when it hurts to be reasonable." He smiled archly at the superintendent, who ignored this attempt at levity and resumed.

"During my regime at Dogwood Flats I have heard a great deal about Uncle Charley, the late Ashforth Dale, his daughter Monica, and that unfortunate wretch, Bob Mason. I find no reason why Uncle Charley wasn't going to live long. He was very old, Man, he must have been more than 90, and I know his old heart was beginning to play out on him. I saw him carry a sack of flour out of the general store one day, and after he had dumped it in the corner of his flivver he leaned against the car for about five minutes, bent down and shaking like a leaf.

When I went out to see what ailed the old man I discovered he couldn't talk he was breathing stertorously and trembling; his face was pale green and he appeared on the verge of a collapse. He looked frightened. A heart attack makes anybody speculate on the ultimate zenith—and Uncle Charley was ninety odd.

"I had a suspicion that if I'd offer him a good price for his land he'd forget his animosity toward you and sell. There are no pockets in a shroud, and he couldn't take the land or his dollars with him into the grave with him. Uncle Charley had horse-sense.

"He hated you for the part he thought you played in hiring special counsel to prosecute that man Mason, who killed my predecessor at Dogwood Flats, but—Uncle Charley loved that little girl as if she was his own daughter. Monica Dale was always his favorite. Why, they tell me that when Uncle Charley went over to that tunnel and found his partner there dying, with his chest caved in by a rock that had fallen off the roof of the tunnel, his grief was such that half the men in Dogwood wept in sympathy with him.

"He and Ash Dale were boys together in the Confederate army. They crossed the plains together, and they loved each other and bickered bitterly at each other half a lifetime just to conceal their affection for each other. While I only spoke to him once—that was before he had the heart attack—I had heard all about Uncle Charley.

"I know Uncle Charley was a white man. A cleaner, finer old sport never drew the breath of life. So I knew he'd sell at a price that would repay me a huge fortune to Monica Dale. I knew he would want the money for her. And I wasn't disappointed. He died. Then the poor fellow died and spoiled everything. I've got that monster to deal with now, if I want to buy the property from Uncle Charley's estate, and I've got him to deal with when I attempt to buy it from Monica Dale after the property comes into her possession."

"All very interesting, John," Jethroe agreed, "and all excellent business reasoning, even if it does appear to be mixed slightly with unbusinesslike sentiment. What did you offer Uncle Charley for the land?"

"A hundred and fifty thousand dollars.

"In God's name—why? John Thurlow, you must be crazy. He never agreed with Ashforth Dale that the land was worth exploiting."

"That is true. When Uncle Charley acquired that land he had an idea it was valuable, but after he and Dale had driven the tunnel and failed to develop anything spectacular, Uncle Charley lost faith. Ashforth Dale did not. However, as I said, Uncle Charley was nobody's fool, and of course the instant I came to deal with him he knew the land looked good to the Hercules Hydraulic Mining Company. He would have declined a trifling offer and fenced with me. And I couldn't afford that. I believed the old man had but a short time to live—and I wanted to close the deal immediately. Moreover, I disliked being niggardly with that Dale girl."

"The Dale girl didn't enter into the proposition at all," Jethroe cried angrily. "You and I were the only persons to be considered."

"Oh yes, she did enter into it. I would have taken the long end of a big bet that she was going to be Uncle Charley's heir—and I wanted to see her fixed for life."

"You're in love with her,' Jethroe charged.

John Thurlow smiled. "The man whose heart wouldn't go out to that girl would be just about 10 per cent human, Mr. Jethroe. . I felt I could afford to be generous—with your money."

"Of all the damned impudence!"

"What! You haven't heard everything yet. You realize, of course, that when a man has no capital he must operate on brains. If I had succeeded in buying that land from Uncle Charley for $150,000 and selling it to you for $500,000, my profit would have been $350,000, while yours would have been half a million."

"The two profits combined total $850,000," Jethroe reminded him, "and half of that is $425,000. You aren't a business man, John Thurlow. You're a sentimental fool. You held the high hand and you played it like a dunce."

"Death held the high hand, Mr. Jethroe. I would have been satisfied to make $350,000 off you, but an additional $75,000 in graft from the company that employed me would not have been to my liking. You see, we engineers have a code of ethics. We're loyal to the payroll."

"But I was the payroll—I am the payroll."

"You," said John Thurlow firmly, "are Henry Jethroe."

"Enough of this infernal fencing. We understand each other. If you can still put that deal through with Monica Dale, after she comes into possession of the property, I'll give you half a million dollars for your option."

"That is no longer possible, I fear. You see, if I had been enabled to make that $350,000 before Uncle Charley died and left his $150,000 to Monica Dale, it was my plan to court Miss Monica and, if my luck held, to marry her.

"I think," he added thoughtfully, "that I should have derived a great deal of happiness from the task of trying to make that girl happy. As a poor man, however, I would not have attempted the task. I am still involved in debt due to wildcat flier in a mine which I took on my own three years ago and I'd never ask a superior woman like Monica Dale to marry me and scrimp and sacrifice to help me bury my dead horse."

"Unselfish sort of chap, aren't you?" Jethroe sneered. "You may try my patience sorely, but still I will be patient. If you find it possible to put the deal through with the girl later on will you put it through?"

"Yes, for the mining company, but not for you. And the price to the mining company will be one million dollars, all of which sum will be paid to Monica Dale. Of course as the agent in the transaction I will exact a commission of five percent, which will put me out of debt, and I have no reason to believe Miss Dale, or the executor of Uncle Charley's estate, will object to this legitimate charge."

"I apologize to you, John. You're not the fool I thought you were. Why trifle with a paltry $550,000 profit when you can marry a million?"

"You're off on the wrong foot again I'm not going to marry her. That young forest-ranger, Anthony Garland, the executor of Uncle Charley's estate, is the lucky man. And while I have only met him once, he struck me as such a fine, clean, decent chap I can't even work up a healthy jealousy of him."

"How do you know he's the lucky man?"

"He told me so."

"Well, I'd find out for myself if I were you."

"The suggestion is unnecessary. I shall. I never admit a sound thrashing until I've been counted out."

Jethroe carefully cut the end off a fresh cigar and pondered the while. "Well, John," he resumed presently, "this conversation has been extremely frank and illuminating, even if it has gotten us nowhere. However, you have overlooked one trifling detail. The Hercules Hydraulic Mining Company will not buy the young lady's land."

"Then it can junk its equipment, because there is no other land available for it to hydraulic. It cost the company a small fortune to get that equipment in over those mountains and it will not spend another fortune to haul it out. I shall have a [illegible] Mason has given her a deed to it and that deed was recorded yesterday by her friend, Anthony Garland. In talking with Garland recently I learned that Miss Dale had the deed. Mason gave it to her just prior to his conviction, to be held by her in trust for his infant son. I advised Garland to induce her to record it. So I'm holding a pat hand. How many cards do you crave to fill your bob-tailed flush, Mr. Jethroe?"

The last vestige of anger fled Jethroe's face. He threw back his head and laughed with the utmost good nature. "You have another apology coming to you, John," he declared gallantly.

"Don't bother to make it. How would you like to enter an agreement with the Canfield estate now to purchase that land for one million dollars? I think I can negotiate such a deal—on behalf of the company, not Henry Jethroe."

"I'm inclined to think you win, John. In fact, I'd almost bet on it. However, there are numerous angles to consider in this singularly angular situation, so suppose you permit me to do some thinking before I give you a definite answer. Meanwhile, remain in town a few days and enjoy yourself. You've been stuck up in that remote country for nearly a year without leaving it. You should attend a few good shows and forget this mining deal for a few days."

John Thurlow gravely laid an envelope before his chief. It was addressed to Jethroe, who opened it and discovered it to be Thurlow's resignation.

"There's is no necessity for this," Jethroe declared.

"I fear there is, Mr. Jethroe. I have never been dismissed from a position in all my life and I shall take no chances now. Besides, the job is a bit dirty, and I can see you're figuring on trying some other means of acquiring that property."

Jethroe's full face flamed brick-red and his eye glittered angrily. "Well, John," he said with a heavy effort to be pontifical "after that unjust and recalcitrant speech nothing remains for me to do save accept your resignation, which I do. Go back to Dogwood Flats, close up your accounts, pay yourself your salary to date and pull out with your straw suitcase and your old tin trunk."

"Thanks. I've done that already. I left my assistant in command, and when you choose to send your auditor up to look over my accounts you'll find them in perfect order. By the way, you'll note my new address on that resignation. That's where I'll be when you send for me to put over this mining deal for you. I wish you joy of Anthony Garland."

Jethroe smiled an enigmatic smile. "I'm not worrying about him. Good-by, John. Good luck to you. I wish you that because you're going to need it."

John Thurlow bowed gravely and walked out.

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

The thunder grumbled and growled a little yesterday, which was Sunday, but that was the worst it done. It didn't rain. Jubilee likes Sunday better than he does any other day but Saturday. I do not hate to stay in Sunday school as long as I have to stay in day school, so there is that much gained.

I let Jubilee down by the rope in his teeth as soon as I got up and he was running around the yard chasing a couple of robins and making the cat mad, because the cat thinks maybe it could make a sneak on the robins if Jubilee didn't keep chasing them and getting them all scairt up. But Jubilee is not so afraid of the cat as he was before he found out he could box her. When we were coming in from the barn my mother had put a saucer of milk out for the cat and she was drinking it when we come along. And she swole up her tail and spitted at Jubilee and made a pass at him with her paw, but he has got a longer reach than she has, so he just reached out with his left and gave her a sideswipe that turned her plum over, and then he drank the milk—like the fella with the longest reach and the hardest swipe always does.

The windows of the Sunday school were left open all the time and it seemed like we could sing better with the windows open. I liked that because I am one of the loudest singers in Sunday school. But Jubilee got outside of the window when I was doing my best and began to howl like his heart was breaking, and we all stopped singing, and the teacher asted me which I would rather have closed, my mouth or the window, and I closed my face.

Today was Monday, and Annabelle Lee almost got her first spanking. When I got home from school my mother was out looking at her garden, and she had put the rake on the back step with the teeth sticking up and the handle leaning against the house, and was standing with her back to the step when here come Annabelle Lee with a geranium my mother had just planted, roots and all. My mother grabbed Annabelle Lee and said: "Now, young lady you have busted that and you are going to get whaled good and plenty. This is going to [illegible]

UNSUNG MOTHERS

MOTHER'S DAY has passed. Today those who made it a mere pretense, a show, have forgotten the day for another year. Those who made it just a little brighter for Her continue on in their kindly way.

And with all these thoughts for Her one's mind drifts along and turns to those whom we might call the "unsung mothers." Perhaps in the literal sense of the word they are not mothers—but in spirit, in deed and in act they are as much mothers as those who have gone through the agony of child-bearing.

There are two women. They never married. Maybe you and I would call them "old maids." Those unacquainted with them see, perhaps, an ease of life. But, behind their apparent placidness there is a story of sacrifice and love no Mother's Day tale can overreach.

Middle age brings the care of an aged father and mother. Subsequent illness. Shadows of death. Their cares are somewhat lightened. But a brother is dependent on them. Their attentions are centered on him.

A few years. Another brother's wife dies leaving him and a small son. To the sixteen the brother goes with his boy. Their own comfort and future laid aside they devote their whole selves to the comforting of the brother and rearing of his child.

A Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

The Trap Is Sprung but Not Without Cost

ILLIAN awakened me promptly at the expiration of four hours, and helped me through my dressing and breakfast as though I were a baby.

"Your father and Allen aren't stirring yet, praise be," she said. "Neither is anybody else except Katie and Jim. You'll have time to get everything done before we break the glorious news to them."

I worked fast but carefully, and long before noon, the original code message with its transcription was in my father's hands, and I had prepared a paper so closely resembling the one Princess Olina had carried that only an eye experienced in the Sumerian symbols could detect the difference.

"You really don't need to put so much work on it," Lillian said. "The gifted Sergius won't have any chance to look at it closely, but I suppose an artist must be humored."

I flushed for there was such a genuine admiration in her tone that I felt humbled. It was a tone, however, which I was to hear in my father's voice, in Allen Drake's and even in Dicky's although I knew it cost my husband something to commend me for the work he loathed having me do.

It was an intonation of remorse and horror, however, which was in Princess Olina's voice when I told her that her own mother and father were marked for death upon the note paper she had been carrying, and that the woman High in court's favor who had paid her a "fortune" for delivering a message, had herself marked her mother's name down.

"Oh! what have I done!" the girl moaned. "I thought the message was about jewels which Mavcha could not get out of the country she had left."

"It is not what you have done, but what you must do," I told her sternly. "The capture of this arch plotter Sergius depends upon your coolness and courage tonight."

She drew herself to her full slender height, every inch a princess of a royal house.

"I shall not fail," she said. "Tell me exactly what I must do and I will do it."

It was my father who gave her the instructions for her actions as it was he who planned every detail of the night's work. He already had sent for trusted operatives who were waiting in a town a few miles away and to whom Dicky carried instructions as to their shadowing and seizing the accomplices of Sergius who were manning the truck and waiting in the other places of which his red-bearded associate had told Dicky. And after a dinner which none of us could eat, he summoned Olina, Lillian, Dicky, Allen Drake and myself to his rooms for our final directions. Mr. Vertizen and his powerful and faithful chauffeur, Otto were to wait a few rods down the road at nine o'clock, within hearing of a whistle if one were blown, but far enough away so that any possible passer might see only Otto engaged upon a pretended emergency repair to the car.

"The place" said my father, "is the flat stone in the circle of trees upon the hill. The bushes will afford shelter to Allen and Richard who will be there before nine o'clock, the hour named by this Sergius, but not near enough for him to find them if he takes it into his head to do a little exploring. K seven has told us that Sergius is to stay a little in the background while he sets the girl for the paper and that he will wait only to see that Petrov, as Sergius calls him, has the girl fast before starting on the run for the cabin and the car which he is to run himself. Lillian, you and Margaret are to keep behind the princess as far back as possible so that you distinguish her, so that if anyone save K seven should seize her, you could summon Dicky and Allen back with the police whistles which you will carry. That will also be the signal for Vertizen to dash in with his car, and for Jim and me to come out. But I anticipate no trouble. I expect that a few minutes after the owl's hoot is heard, the princess will be safely back in the house—K seven will turn her over to Margaret and Lillian as soon as he sees them, and will then help Richard and Allen with Sergius—and that this arch fiend, safely bound, will be here in this room submitting to some questioning."
